Chapter Executive Committee (CEC) Emphasis

The Chapter leadership and Executive Committee assess past performance and future goals to review initiatives and challenges for the upcoming year. Please visit our website link below for a list of the current CEC members and roles. During the annual transition, the work to align the upcoming year with the strategic plan has some notable items as we look to challenges and initiatives ahead:

- Increase young members. We want to reach out to students and young accountability professionals to get them interested in public service and join AGA. We will contact colleges and universities, and have a Young Professional Leader on the Committee, and a Student Adviser.
- Forge partnerships with other New England Chapters. Chapters in Maine, along with members in the rest of New England, may not have the educational opportunities we have in Boston. We will offer on-line, streaming replays and webinars to allow regional participation.
- Ensure continuity and growth. Our Chapter website hosts original and replayed webcasts offering various CPEs for participants who attend the entire training. The webcasts use an attendance monitoring system and online participants can also learn on their own time, providing a chance to successfully acquire CPEs in a variety of different ways.
- We continue to strengthen our online offerings and encourage high levels of participation. Priorities may continue to challenge in person offerings and a hybrid or fully virtual method can allow us to continue to provide high level growth.

Leadership Perspective

In FY20, the Boston Chapter strived to engage current and new members by joining the Chapter Executive Committee (CEC) and the related Chapter committees. Highlighting our Chapter “succession planning,” and “leadership development,” in order to meet our short and long-term goals. This year was successful and our goal to use the Chapter’s leadership as an opportunity for future leaders to be identified and offer creative ways as we head into the next fiscal year. Our Chapter looks towards the expertise of previous members to assist the CEC during a year of transition and growth!

COVID-19 Adaptations

The Boston Chapter offers many educational opportunities. Recent partnerships with online educational providers has allowed the Chapter to offer high quality professional development opportunities through webinars and online workshops. As COVID-19 continues to challenge in person gatherings, the Chapter expects to continue to be creative with educational and professional events.

Especially noteworthy is our partnership with Accounting Continuing Professional Education Network (ACPEN), the largest provider of streaming video webinars for CPA-specific online training. ACPEN's CPA training sessions can be purchased on the Chapter's online library at <https://agaboston.ce21.com/>.
